PENCILLINGS BY THE WAY:

First Impressions of Foreign Scenes, Customs and Manners,
BY N. P. WILLIS.

SCOTLAND.

Scotch hospitality—immense possessions of the nobility—duchess' infant school—manners of high life—the tone of conversation in England and America contrasted.

The aim of Scotch hospitality seems to be, to convince you that the house and all that is in it is your own, and you are at liberty to enjoy it as if you were, in the French sense of the French phrase, chez vous. The routine of Gordon Castle was what each one chose to make it. Between breakfast and lunch the ladies were generally invisible, and the gentlemen rode or shot, or played billiards, or kept their rooms. At two o'clock, a dish or two of hot game and a profusion of cold meats were set on the small tables in the dining-room, and every body came in for a kind of lounging half-meal, which occupied perhaps an hour. Then all adjourned to the drawing room, under the windows of which were drawn up carriages of all descriptions, with grooms, outriders, footmen, and saddle-horses for gentlemen and ladies. Parties were then made up for driving or riding, and from a pony chaise to a phaeton and four, there was no class of vehicles which was not at your disposal. In ten minutes the carriages were usually all filled, and away they flew, some to the banks of the Spey or the sea-side, some to the drives in the park, and with the delightful consciousness that, speed where you would, the horizon scarce limited the possession of your host, and you were everywhere at home. The ornamental gates flying open at your approach, miles distant from the castle; the herds of red deer trooping away from the sound of wheels in the silent park; the stately phaetons feeding tamely in the immense preserves; the hares scarce troubling themselves to get out of the length of the whip; the stalking gamekeepers lifting their hats in the dark recesses of the forest—there was something in this perpetually reminding you of your privileges, which, as a novelty, was far from disagreeable. I could not at the time bring myself to feel, what perhaps would be more poetical and republican, that a ride in the wild and unfeasted forest of my own country would have been more to my taste.

The second afternoon of my arrival, I took a seat in the carriage with Lord Aberdeen and his daughter, and we followed the dutchess, who drove herself in a pony-chaise, to visit a school on the estate. Attached to a small gothic chapel, a few minutes' drive from the castle, stood a building in the same style, appropriated to the instruction of the children of the duke's tenantry. There were a hundred and thirty little creatures, from two years to five or six, and, like all infant schools in these days of improved education, it was an interesting and affecting sight. The last one I had been in was at Athens, and though I missed here the dark eyes and Grecian faces of the Aegean, I saw health and beauty of a kind which stirred up more images of home, and promised, perhaps, more for the future. They went through their evolutions, and answered their questions with an intelligence and cheerfulness that were quite delightful, and I was sorry to leave them, even for a drive in the loveliest sunset of a lingering day of summer.

People in Europe are more curious about the comparison of the natural productions of America with those of England, than about our social and political differences. A man who does not care to know whether the president has destroyed the bank, or the bank the president, or whether Mrs. Trollope has flattered the Americans or not, will be very much interested to know if the pine-tree in his park is comparable to the same tree in America, if the same cattle are found there, or the woods stocked with the same game as his own. I would recommend a little study of trees particularly, and of vegetation generally, as valuable knowledge for an American coming abroad. I think there is nothing on which I have been so often questioned. The dutchess led the way to a plantation of American trees, at some distance from the castle, and stopping beneath some really noble firs, asked if our forest-trees were often larger, with an air as if she believed they were not. They were shrubs, however, to the gigantic productions of the west. Whatever else we may see abroad, we must return home to find the magnificence of nature.

The number at the dinner-table of Gordon Castle was seldom less than thirty, but the company was continually varied by departures and arrivals. No sensation was made by either one or the other. A travelling-carriage dashed up to the door, was disburdened of its load, and drove round to the stables, and the question was seldom asked, "Who is arrived?" You were sure to see at dinner—and an addition of half a dozen to the party made no perceptible difference in any thing. Leave-takings were managed in the same quiet way. Adieus were made to the duke and dutchess, and to no one else except he happened to encounter the parting guest upon the staircase, or were more than a common acquaintance. In short, in every way the génie of life seemed wedded out, and if unhappiness or ennui found its way into the castle, it was introduced in the sufferer's own bosom. For me, I gave myself up to enjoyment with an abandon I could not resist. With kindness and courtesy in every look, the luxuries and comforts of a regal establishment at my freest disposal—solitude when I pleased, company when I pleased, the whole visible horizon fenced in for the enjoyment of a household, of which I was a temporary portion, and no enemy except time and the gout, I felt as if I had been spirited into some castle of felicity, and had not come by the royal mailcoach at all.

The great spell of high life in this country seems to be repose. A violent sensations are avoided, as out of taste. In conversation, nothing is so "odd" (a word by the way, that in England means every thing disagreeable) as emphasis or startling epithet, or gesture, and in common intercourse nothing so vulgar as any approach to "a scene." The high-bred Englishman stud es to express himself in the plainest words that will convey his meaning, and is just as simple and calm in describing the death of his friend, and just as technical, so to speak, as in discussing the weather. For all extraordinary admiration the word "capital" suffices—for all ordinary praise the word "nice"! for all condemnation in morals, manners, or religion, the word "odd"! To express yourself out of this simple vocabulary is to raise the eyebrows of the whole company at once, and stamp yourself under-bred, or a foreigner.

This sounds ridiculous, but it is the exponent not only of good breeding, but of the true philosophy of social

TUESDAY, JULY 7, 1835.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Democracy.—Nothing shows more plainly the nature and class of the people who support the Administration, and the principles of the Administration, and nothing demonstrates more clearly the character and motives of those who are its opponents and revilers, than a paragraph copied with approbation from a New Hampshire paper into the Centinel. The great mass of the common people, those who labor with their own hands, the honest farmers, mechanics, &c., are in favor of the Administration. Why is this? Because, those who are now in power support the cause of the laboring and industrious classes, and those democratic principles which are favorable to them, and which place them on a political equality with the rich. On the contrary, almost all the rich are opposed to the present Administration, and are violent advocates of the Bank and Tariff party, the old federalists, now calling themselves whigs. Why is this? Because, they know that the whig leaders are for favoring the rich, giving them all the profitable monopolies, such as bank charters, high tariffs to favor their manufacturing corporations, &c. &c., all which are, in fact, nothing but taxes or tribute levied upon the great mass of the people, the poor and middle classes, to be paid into the pockets of the wealthy few, who own the banks, the factories, &c. &c. This position is rendered so plain and evident, by the statements made in the paragraph to which we have alluded, that he who runs may read.

From this statement it appears, that in Portsmouth, (N. H.) out of 61 persons, paying a tax over 100 dollars each, there are only THREE Jackson men;—and of 67 paying over 50 dollars (and less than 100,) NINE only are Jackson men!—Reader, look at this. Out of 169 of the richest men in Portsmouth, all but TWELVE are opposed to the Administration, and of course in favor of the Bank faction. Can any thing demonstrate more plainly the principles and objects of the leading whigs?

Again—Of the entire tax, which is upwards of 32,000 dollars, only about one-eighth part is paid by members of the Jackson party, though there is a large majority of the voters in Portsmouth in favor of the Administration.

From these data, which may be applied, with little variation, to all New England, it will be seen who are in favor of democratic principles, equal rights and privileges, public virtue, and the pure fundamental objects and intentions of the Constitution;—and it will also be seen who are opposed to them; who are endeavoring to subvert, to undermine, to overthrow the basis on which our political institutions are founded, and from which we derive our unequalled prosperity. We must be careful to preserve these principles unchanged and uncontaminated, if we would preserve our prosperity and our happiness. We must be jealous of those who would insidiously subvert these principles; who are always talking of their regard for them, when they are secretly endeavoring to destroy them; who are constantly boasting of their love of the Constitution, while it is, in fact, regarded by them as a dead letter, whenever it comes in competition with their own selfishness, their own private interest, and their inordinate love of wealth and power.

Look again. Out of the rich portion of our population, only one in twenty is embarked in the support of pure democratic principles;—and even among the moderately rich, only one in twelve is found in this class;—while nearly all those on whom we can depend for the stability of the government, the preservation of the union, and the security of our political and religious rights, liberties, and privileges, equally among all,—are farmers, mechanics, laboring men. These are, in reality, the true bone and sinew,—the virtue, honesty, and patriotism of the country. Let them preserve their independence, and still look and think for themselves.—Whenever they suffer themselves to be bridled, haltered, and led by the nose, like asses, by the monied, the arrogant jockies, who are striving to break and ride them at pleasure, their happiness and prosperity, and the liberties of the country, will be at an end. America will then become the still dead-sea of despotism, in which every thing valuable will be sunk and overwhelmed.

Legal.—In a recent case brought against certain sailors for “conspiracy to make a revolt, and refusal to obey orders,” it appeared in evidence that the prisoners had refused to do duty, but without violence, and it was thereupon decided by the court, that there was no law of the United States making this an offence, and they were therefore discharged.

It has also been decided in Richmond—in the case of a man convicted and sentenced for mail robbery, and brought before a Judge upon a writ of habeas corpus to plead that the U. S. Court had no authority to confine him in state or county prisons—that there could be no legal objection to the Marshal putting him in the custody of the Superintendent of the Penitentiary for the execution of the sentence.

Commerce and Revenue of Boston.—The number of foreign arrivals this year up to June 30th, was 533; during the corresponding time of last year, 511. Increase this year, 28. The number of foreign clearances up to June 30, 1835, was 533—during the corresponding time last year, 478. Increase this year, 55.

Revenue.—First quarter 1835, $582,731.29. Second do, do, estimated at 1,074,454.00

$1,657,185.29

First quarter 1834, $655,714.56. Second do, do, $85,886.03

$1,508,600.61

Increase of revenue for the two first quarters of this year, $148,584.68

Wm. Dinniford, Manager of the new theatre in Chatham square, New York, has offered a premium of $50 for the best poetical address, and $200, and one third of the gross receipts of the 7th night, for the best comedy in three acts, to be used upon the opening of the new house, and to be forwarded to him on or before the 10th of August.

Townships 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, of range 2, east.

Township 2, of range 3, east.

Townships 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, of range 1, west.

Townships 2, 3, 4 and 5, of range 2, west.

Townships 2, 3, 4 and 5, of range 3, west.

Townships 2, 3, 4 and 5, of range 4, west.

Townships 2, 3, 4 and 5 of range 5, west.

These lands reserved for the use of schools, or for other purposes, as well as the lands which may have been selected as reservations under the provisions of the said treaties, are to be excluded from the sales. Each sale is to continue open for two weeks, and no longer. The lands will be offered in quarter sections and fractional quarter sections, where such exist.

Given under my hand, at the City of Washington, this twenty-fourth day of June, A.D. 1835.

ANDREW JACKSON.

By the President:

JNO. M. MOORE, Acting Commissioner of the General Land Office.

13 Certificates of scrip issued from the Treasury Department, consisting of bond land warrants granted by the State of Virginia, and the United States, for services in the Revolutionary Army; as well as certificates of land stock, issued at the District Land Offices, for the amount of money forfeited by individuals, under the credit system of land sales, are not receivable for lands within the limits of the Chickasaw cession.
